A phone rings at Alpha Recovery Center in Lancaster at two in the morning just as often as it rings at two in the afternoon, and one of the most common questions on the other end is whether medication can actually make withdrawal survivable. For opioid and alcohol use in particular, the honest answer is often yes. Medication assisted treatment at Alpha Recovery Center combines FDA approved medications with counseling and behavioral therapy rather than using medication on its own. For clients coming off heroin, fentanyl, prescription painkillers or long term opioid use, medication assisted treatment can ease the physical symptoms of withdrawal enough that the person is actually able to participate in therapy instead of simply enduring the days. The same approach applies to alcohol dependence, where medically supervised detox is a safety requirement rather than an optional extra, since stopping alcohol suddenly without supervision can be dangerous. Medication is never treated as the whole answer here, it is one piece of a plan that also includes individual therapy, group therapy and, where a family wants to be involved, family therapy sessions. The detox and residential setting sits on landscaped grounds in Lancaster with a swimming pool, jacuzzi and gym, and clients often describe the pace of the first week, medication support paired with rest, real food from onsite chef Ted, and a quiet high desert setting, as the difference between a detox that fails and one that actually holds. Group therapy and individual sessions begin as soon as a client is medically stable enough to take part, and the clinical team monitors medication response closely during those early days rather than leaving a client to manage symptoms alone. Clients treated for methamphetamine and cocaine use, which do not have the same medication options as opioids or alcohol, still receive the same intensity of clinical support alongside anyone in the medication assisted track.

Alpha Recovery Center | Drug and Alcohol Detox | 7316 W Ave D-8, Lancaster, CA 93536 | (866) 813-0909

Owner Tony is known among clients and their families for staying personally involved in daily operations rather than treating the facility as a business he checks in on occasionally, and that hands on presence carries through into how medication assisted treatment is monitored day to day. Insurance plans including Anthem, Blue Cross Blue Shield, TRICARE and MultiPlan are accepted, with free dual diagnosis treatment Los Angeles verification handled by phone before intake begins. The facility carries a 5.0 rating from 43 Google reviews, many of which mention detox specifically, and staff are used to answering detailed questions from family members who are nervous about what medication assisted treatment actually involves. Families searching for a drug and alcohol rehab Los Angeles County families can reach at any hour are welcome to call Alpha Recovery Center at (866) 813-0909, or reach the Lancaster facility at 7316 W Ave D-8 to ask specific questions about medication assisted treatment before making a Drug Rehabs Los Angeles decision on where to start.

Alpha Recovery Center | Drug and Alcohol Detox Address: 7316 W Ave D-8, Lancaster, CA 93536 Phone: (866) 813-0909 FAQ About Drug Rehabs Los Angeles How much does rehab cost in LA? Cost depends far more on your insurance plan and the level of care you need than on the facility's zip code. Alpha Recovery Center works with Aetna, Anthem, Blue Cross Blue Shield, Blue Shield of California, Cigna, HealthNet, Kaiser Permanente, TRICARE, UMR, MultiPlan and several other carriers, and many clients find that detox and residential treatment are covered in part or in full. Verification is free and takes a short phone call on (866) 813-0909, with no obligation to admit afterward. How long is the average stay in drug rehab? Most residential programs run somewhere between 30 and 90 days, with medical detox usually taking the first several days of that. Clients at the Lancaster facility commonly complete around 30 days of residential care before stepping down into a partial hospitalization or intensive outpatient schedule. The right length is a clinical decision made with you rather than a fixed package, and longer stays are available when they are clinically indicated. What are the types of rehabs? Addiction treatment is usually described as levels of care rather than separate facilities. Alpha Recovery Center provides the full range in one place: inpatient medical detox, residential treatment, a partial hospitalization program, an intensive outpatient program, standard outpatient care and ongoing aftercare. Being able to move between those levels without changing providers means you keep the same therapist and the same case manager as your needs change. What is the most effective addiction treatment? There is no single treatment that works for everyone, which is why evidence based programs combine several approaches. The clinical team in Lancaster uses cognitive behavioral therapy, dialectical behavior therapy, trauma informed care, individual and group counseling, family sessions and medication assisted treatment where it is appropriate. Matching that mix to the individual, rather than running everyone through the same track, is what tends to make the difference. How to pick a rehab facility? Look at whether the facility offers medically supervised detox, whether it treats co-occurring mental health conditions, whether it accepts your insurance, and what people who actually completed the program say about it. Alpha Recovery Center holds a 5.0 star rating across 43 Google reviews, with clients repeatedly naming the on-site therapist and the owner's day to day presence. Visiting or calling and asking direct questions is always worth doing before you commit. How successful is rehab for drug addicts? Addiction is a chronic condition, so outcomes are measured the way they are for other chronic conditions, in terms of improvement and management rather than a single cure. What consistently helps is completing a full course of care, treating any underlying mental health condition alongside the substance use, and staying connected to support afterward. Alpha Recovery Center builds all three into its program and keeps in touch with clients through aftercare once they leave Lancaster. What is the number one drug of abuse in the United States? Alcohol remains the most widely used and misused substance in the country, and it is one of the few where stopping abruptly without medical supervision can be genuinely dangerous. That is a large part of why the Lancaster facility runs a medically supervised inpatient detox rather than referring alcohol clients elsewhere. Fentanyl, methamphetamine, prescription opioids and benzodiazepines are also treated here. Is addiction a disease or a choice? Major medical bodies classify addiction as a chronic condition affecting the brain, not a failure of willpower. That framing matters practically, because it points treatment toward medical care, therapy and long term support rather than punishment. Clients at Alpha Recovery Center are treated with that in mind, and reviewers frequently mention being spoken to with respect and dignity throughout their stay. How many times do people relapse before recovery lasts? Research on recovery suggests most people make several serious attempts before sobriety holds, so a previous relapse is not a reason to expect failure this time. Relapse prevention planning is a standard part of the program in Lancaster, covering triggers, coping strategies and what to do in the first difficult moment. Aftercare and alumni contact continue after discharge for exactly this reason. What is the shortest time you can stay in rehab? Detox alone can take as little as a few days depending on the substance and your medical history, though detox on its own is generally not enough to sustain recovery. Alpha Recovery Center will discuss shorter stays where circumstances such as work, childcare or a court date make a full residential program difficult, and can build an outpatient or intensive outpatient schedule around them. Call (866) 813-0909 to talk through what is realistic in your situation. What to do after leaving rehab? The weeks straight after discharge carry the most risk, so having a plan in place before you leave matters more than almost anything else. Clients leaving the Lancaster program step down into PHP, IOP or outpatient care where appropriate, leave with a written relapse prevention plan, and stay connected through aftercare. Local recovery meetings across Lancaster, Palmdale and the wider Antelope Valley give people a routine to build around. How do you help someone who does not want help? You cannot force an adult into treatment, but you can stop covering the consequences, set clear boundaries and stay in contact so the door is open when they are ready. Families across Los Angeles County call Alpha Recovery Center on (866) 813-0909 to talk through options before their loved one has agreed to anything, and the admissions line is answered 24 hours a day. Family therapy is part of the program once someone does come in.