

Freight billing problems are almost a given for any business that ships regularly, but they don't have to drain your budget. A disciplined approach to freight audit and payment can stop these issues in their tracks. Here's a look at the most common billing headaches and how a structured solution clears them up, leading to real savings and smoother day-to-day operations.

Where Freight Billing Goes Wrong

- Incorrect rates and charges applied in error
- Accessorial fees that don't match what's in your contract
- Duplicate charges and credits that never get applied
- Slow resolution of disputes and delayed payments

How Audit and Payment Services Fix the Problem

- Line-by-line validation: Every charge is checked carefully against your carrier contracts.
- Organized dispute handling: Each dispute is managed systematically, with a clear owner responsible for resolving it.
- On-time payments: Prompt, accurate payments reduce the risk of late fees and help build better carrier relationships.
- One central record: All data is stored in a single, auditable location to support audits and governance.

What the Process Looks Like

1. Invoices are loaded into a central audit system.
2. Rates, surcharges and taxes are checked for accuracy.
3. Any discrepancies are flagged for review and resolution.
4. Corrected payments are processed and credits are issued.
5. Clear reports are generated and shared with stakeholders.

The Results You Can Expect

- Fewer billing errors and much less time spent reconciling invoices by hand
- Disputes resolved more quickly
- Higher-quality data to support forecasting and planning
