Each player gets the items that drop from the cases, and the overall value of those products figures out the winner. The format simulates a lottery-style "battle" and is often marketed as a skill-adjacent alternative to basic gambling, because players can select which cases to open and can often employ methods based on the drop rates published by the game's developers.

How a Typical Case Battle Works

1. Choice: A gamer produces a lobby and selects a particular case (e.g., "Chroma 2 Case") or a random set of cases.
2. Invitation: Other gamers join the lobby, sometimes through a public line, sometimes through a personal link.
3. Opening: Once the lobby is complete, the platform automatically opens the selected cases for each individual. The drop algorithm is usually governed by the game's main likelihood tables.
4. Appraisal: The market value of each skin is computed using real-time pricing from third-party markets (e.g., Buff163, Steamanalyst). The player with the highest overall value wins the pot.
5. Payout: Winning skins are moved to the winner's Steam stock or, on some websites, can be transformed to crypto or cash.
