

The quality of teaching at a music academy is as important as the quality of the instruments it sells. LVL Music Academy's teaching team includes highly experienced European, Russian, and local violin teachers, bringing diverse pedagogical traditions to Singapore's violin students and providing a richness of approach that few academies in the city can match. The European and Russian traditions of violin teaching are among the most rigorous and well-developed in the world, with centuries of accumulated pedagogical wisdom embedded in methods such as those of the Russian school, the Franco-Belgian school, and the various national traditions that have evolved from them. Access to teachers trained in these traditions is a significant advantage Discover more here for Singapore students who aspire to high levels of musical achievement. Principal Janice Senejani, who performed with the Singapore National Youth Orchestra and has taught at leading Singapore schools, provides the pedagogical leadership that ensures all teachers at LVL work within a coherent and high-quality framework, regardless of their individual training background.
